

About the Authors

Beth Ashmore is a librarian, writer, and avid TV watcher with an interest in researching whatever happens to be bugging her in her own little library world at the moment, including learning to be a better negotiator. Currently she is a metadata librarian at Samford University where she does cataloging, eresources, and serials management and a little bit of database building, when necessary.

Prior to moving into metadata, she worked as an instruction and reference librarian at Samford and Mississippi State University. She has an MS in library and information science from the University of Illinois, Urbana–Champaign (2000). She has also written articles for a variety of journals, including Searcher and College & Research Libraries. She also maintains the website The Researching Librarian at www.researchinglibrarian.com.

Jill E. Grogg is the eresources librarian at the University of Alabama Libraries. She has published widely on topics such as reference linking, eresource management, digital libraries, and negotiation in a variety of publications, including Searcher, College & Research Libraries, Computers in Libraries, and The Serials Librarian. Her work has been cited both inside and outside her field, including in Science. She is a member of the editorial board of Serials Review and has presented nationally and internationally.

She has an MS in information science from the University of Tennessee (2001), where she was mentored by Dr. Carol Tenopir. She also has an MA in English from the University of Mississippi (1998).

Jeff Weddle is an associate professor in the School of Library and Information Studies at the University of Alabama. Before settling into the academy, he served as a public library director in Mississippi and Maine. His previous books include Bohemian New Orleans: The Story of the Outsider and Loujon Press (University Press of Mississippi, 2007) and a poetry collection, Betray the Invisible (OEOCO, 2010). He has an MS in library and information science from the University of Kentucky (1988) and a PhD in Communications from the University of Tennessee (2003).
